ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

I am deeply indebted to Robert C. Bechtel and his parents, my host family in New York, who taught me language and culture in every aspect for several years.

I want to acknowledge with much appreciation the help of my classmates at New York University and many good friends in developing this text and valuable editorial comments chiefly Paula Lieber, Carolino Nazarino, Ed Vernoff, George Reeve, Robert Golden, John Golden, Richard Rubin, Rocky and Linda Ruiz.

I owe special debt of gratitude to my great professors :

- ◆ Dr. Udom Warotamasikkkhadit of Ramkhamhaeng University

- ◆ Dr. Paul Willis, Dr. Betty Lau Dunlop and
Dr. John Mc Collums of Southern Oregon
State College, Oregon

- ◆ Dr. Arthur Abramson of the University of Connecticut, Storrs, Connecticut

- ◆ Dr. Harvey Nadler, Dr. Robert Willis and Dr. Donald Johnson of New York University, New York

- ◆ Archarn Krieng-grai Noppasonk of Kasetsart University

They gave a great deal of devotion to light up my life.

A special thank you to Miss Pornsiri Phongaksorn who has done my chief work on the manuscript industriously and very neatly.

I also owe a great deal to my students of the past two decades at Ramkhamhaeng University. Helping them understand how to think and how to write argumentative paragraphs and compositions well has helped me think through their needs. This book is response to those needs.
